BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN CONCERT TO BENEFIT

DARE TO CARE FOOD BANK

Louisville, KY (Monday, Oct. 29, 2012) – Fans attending the Bruce Springsteen and the E-Street Band concert on Nov. 3 will have a chance to help the star in supporting a good cause. The Dare to Care food bank will be on hand at the Saturday evening show collecting monetary donations in their effort to help those in the Louisville area. In the past year, Dare To Care and partners provided over 13 million meals to over 192,000 people.

Bruce Springsteen is well known for his efforts to end hunger. On his current tour, the rock and roll icon has chosen to support a local hunger relief organization at each show. Brian Riendeau, Dare to Care Executive Director, said that Springsteen's support is a perfect fit given Dare to Care's grassroots origins.

"Over 40 years ago, Bruce Springsteen began a career that has celebrated the power of community. Kentuckiana demonstrated this power when it began Dare to Care over 40 years ago after a 9 year old child died of hunger in Louisville. We are honored that, during his visit to Louisville, Mr. Springsteen and his fans will support Dare to Care's work to insure that all of our neighbors have the food they need to be healthy. With one in six families needing Dare to Care's help to put food on the table, this support could not be more timely."
